

Undergraduate Science Education Assistant

Position Summary

Lyman Briggs College (LBC) invites applications for an undergraduate student to hire an undergraduate science education assistant for the summer 2017. Work would consist primarily of computer-based science education resource development, which includes videography, video editing, video production, generating slide sets and related tasks. The successful candidate may also need to learn how to identify moths and assist with ongoing Lepidoptera (moths and butterflies) research. This is a paid-trainee position; compensation is $10-$11 per hour, commensurate with experience. The successful candidate will learn all of the discipline-specific skills required while working in this position.
